If you're looking to eat like a local in Melbourne, then you'll need to get off the beaten path and explore the city's hidden gems. Here are a few of our favorite places to eat in Melbourne:

- Chin Chin: This award-winning restaurant is known for its modern take on traditional Chinese cuisine. The menu features a range of dishes, from dim sum to duck pancakes to stir-fries.
- Attica: This fine dining restaurant is headed by chef Ben Shewry, who is known for his innovative and experimental dishes. The menu changes seasonally, but you can expect to find dishes made with local and native ingredients.

- MoVida: This popular restaurant specializes in Spanish tapas. The menu features a wide range of dishes, from traditional tapas to more modern interpretations. MoVida also has a great selection of Spanish wines.
- Maha: This restaurant offers a modern take on Middle Eastern cuisine. The menu features a range of dishes, from dips and mezze to kebabs and tagines.
- Gingerboy: This restaurant specializes in modern Asian cuisine. The menu features a range of dishes, from dumplings to curries to wok-fried noodles.

In addition to these restaurants, Melbourne is also home to a number of great food markets. These markets are a great place to find fresh produce, local delicacies, and street food.

- Queen Victoria Market: This is the largest open-air market in the southern hemisphere. The market is home to over 700 stalls, selling everything from fresh produce to meat and seafood to clothing and souvenirs.
- South Melbourne Market: This market is known for its fresh produce and gourmet food. The market is also home to a number of cafes and restaurants, making it a great place to stop for a bite to eat.
- Dandenong Market: This market is located in Melbourne's south-eastern suburbs. The market is home to a large number of Vietnamese stalls, selling everything from fresh produce to clothing and household goods.

- Footscray Market: This market is located in Melbourne's western suburbs. The market is home to a number of stalls selling African and Middle Eastern food.

If you're looking for a truly authentic Melbourne food experience, then you need to get off the beaten path and explore the city's hidden gems. With its diverse range of cuisines and vibrant food markets, Melbourne is a food lover's paradise.
